Thank you so much for your sincere support of New Zealand kosen-rufu. – SGINZ

‘The Buddha being truly worthy of respect, never judges by the size of one’s offerings. In the past, the boy Virtue Victorious offered a mud pie to the Buddha and was reborn as King Ashoka and ruled over all of Jambudvīpa. A poor woman cut off her hair and sold it to buy oil (for the Buddha) and not even the winds sweeping down from Mount Sumeru could extinguish the flame of the lamp fed by this oil. Accordingly your offerings of two and three strings of coins a far greater than even those of the ruler of Japan, who may offer the nation and build a pagoda adorned with seven kinds of treasures that reaches to the heaven of the thirty-three gods.’ (Reply to Onichi-nyo WND-1089)
